The world's number one in hygienic quartz surfaces

Silestone® has a sophisticated appearance and the touch and weight of natural stone, but with a higher quality. It is produced under the same unrelenting heat and pressure which form volcanic rock and diamonds. The result... a stone which is tough, dense and pure. Manufactured in Spain by Cosentino, it is the first and only quartz surface to have in-built antibacterial protection, which together with its excellent physical and mechanical properties makes it the ideal product for places where a high standard of hygiene is required.

Microban® antibacterial protection, suppresses the growth of potential harmful bacteria such as salmonella, e-coli and listeria, bacteria that can contaminate food. The antibacterial protection is added during the manufacturing process, meaning it is present in every quartz particle of each Silestone® top.

The quartz surfaces in the Silestone® series pride themselves on being stain resistant, acid resistant, scratch resistant, easy to clean as well as offering unlimited design flexibility for kitchen worktops. Offering a designer colour range to fit in with your lifestyle in a traditional polished finish or for a more contemporary feel look at our unique Leather matt texture range*.
